Medal Winner Will Speak To Lions

Capt. J. T. Thompson

FORT MEADE, MD. – A West Virginia native, A U. S. Army captain who recently returned from Vietnam, will be the principal speaker at the Appomattox Lions Club on January 22.

Captain James T. Thompson of Charleston returned in August from a 12-month tour in Vietnam, where he served with the 25th Infantry Division in the Dau Tien region, 50 miles northwest of Saigon. The area includes the Michelin rubber plantation, the largest and most fought - over piece of commercial real estate in Vietnam.

Following one battle, Captain Thompson received the Bronze Star Medal with "V" device for valor after taking over his ambushed company when the commander was killed.

He earned two more awards of the same medal for meritorious service with the 2d Battalion, 22d Infantry and Headquarters, 2d Infantry Brigade.

Capt. Thompson was commissioned when he completed the Infantry Officer Candidate School at Ft. Benning, Ga.

A 1960 graduate of Stonewall Jackson High school in Charleston, the 26 year old officer is currently assigned to First Army headquarters at Ft. George G. Meade, Md. He graduated from Marshall University in Huntington in 1966.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Thompson, who reside at 309 Monogalia St., Charleston. His wife, Karen, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Martin, Bridgeport, W.Va.

Youth Assoc. Changes Date Of Meeting

The Youth Association has been changed to Wednesday, Jan. 21, at 7:30 p. m. in the basement of the Rescue Squad building.

This is an important meeting inasmuch as new officers will be elected. An attempt to work out a satisfactory baseball schedule for 1970 will get underway and a few other rough spots need to be worked on.

The association needs the support of more parents and adults at meetings as this is a program for everyone, not just the officers and coaches. The association had a most successful year in 1969 after just three years of organization.

1,301 Traffic Deaths Set New Record

Virginia's 1,301 traffic fatalities of 1969 far exceeded the existing high of 1,223 set in 1967 and marked the sixth consecutive year in which they had topped the 1,000 mark, Colonel H. W. Burgess, Superintendent of State Police, announced.

"There is simply no plausible explanation," he said. "The year saw more effort both on the state and national level than ever before, but deaths continued to rise at an alarming rate."

The rate of deaths per 100 million miles of travel was 4.9 which compared well with the 4.8 of 1968 and was below the national average of 5.2. Traffic volumes were up approximately 5.3 percent.

Pedestrian deaths were up from 232 to 239. Crashes killing more than one person were down from 126 killing a total of 308 to 123 killing 300. Non - collision crashes, involving contact with no other vehicle or a pedestrian, rose from 456 killing

Invitation For Former Teacher

by Calvin Robinson

A retired Appomattox school teacher, Miss Della Inge, is mighty proud these days. She is proud because one of her star pupils is being inaugurated this week as Governor of Virginia. And she is proud, too, because A. Linwood Holton, her star pupil, remembered to send her an invitation to the inauguration in Richmond.

Early in Miss Inge's teaching career, she was at Toano, Va., along the Chickahominy River in between Richmond and Williamsburg. She did not like the climate there and told her school superintendent, Herman Lee Harris, that she would not return the next year. Supt. Lee wanted to keep Miss Inge in the teaching profession, so he arranged for her to be appointed seventh grade teacher at Big Stone Gap in Wise County. She accepted the appointment and so it was that one of her pupils was young A. Linwood Holton, the future Governor.

"He was just an all-round good pupil," says Miss Della. "He was good in all subjects. And I am not goong to be able to attend the inauguration, but it was so thoughtful for him to remember his seventh grade teacher with an invitation."

Supervisors Request Economic Study

Among those attendings (in foreground) Charles A. Gearhart, Industrial Agent, N & W; C. E. Hunter, Jr., Manager, Industrial Development, N & W; L. L. Bond, Manager, Industrial Development, VEPCO; H. B. Bolen, Manager, Farmville Division, VEPCO; and Kenneth Lane, Assistant Manager, Community Affairs, VEPCO. In the background: H. B. Pack, Appomattox mayor and chairman, County Planning Commission; O. H. Tolley, supervisor; Otho Martin Jr., chairman of supervisors; Mrs. Aldah Gordon, clerk of court; John C. Cole, supervisor; W. E. Jamerson, contractor and member Cent. Va. Planning Commission; plus Harry G. Lawson, Commonwealth's Attorney; Fred Lawson, president, Appomattox Garment Co.; Roy Moon, president, Chamber of Commerce, Robert Stewart, president Junior Chamber of Commerce, James A. Smith, extension agent; C. S. Booth, Appomattox Town manager; C. T. Moses, Jr., Moses Motor Co.; and TIMES – VIRGINIAN publisher, W. Lloyd Vaughan.

Discuss Industry With N & W VEPCO Officials

How to attract industry to Appomattox County was a main topic of discussion as Appomattox supervisors met with industry spokesmen of Norfolk and Western railroad and Virginia Electric Power Co. Friday during their regular monthly meeting.

The board made a request of VEPCO for an economic study of the country.

The meeting concluded with a luncheon at which the visiting officials spoke and answered inquiries from county landowners and businessmen.

As a first item of business Otho W. Martin Jr. was re-elected chairman for another year and the same meeting date, second Friday of each month retained for the same period.

In an opening statement to the visiting officials, supervisor John C. Cole said, "We are trying to get Appomattox into a position to change its economy. We know we're not doing everything possible and we need help. We're receptive to anything you may suggest."

C. E. Hunter, Manager Industrial Development, Norfolk and Western, said that he had in times past suggested Appomattox to industries seeking a site. This community has access to railroads, highways and natural gas lines. The big drawback at the time of the inquiry, he said was a water supply adequate to serve industry. In addition, Appomattox is not heavily populated indicating that a large work force is not immediately available.

Kenneth Lane, Assistant Manager, Community Affairs, VEPCO, said that an "Economic Data Summary" on Appomattox is ready for the printer and will be distributed within the next few weeks. The summary is a four page information sheet on county transportation, industrial sites, government, medical resources, industry, tax rate, estimated labor supply, natural resources, population, news media, employment, etc.

He complimented the county for returning a "questionnaire in the best shape of any we have received."

Lane suggested that the county have good industrial sites in mind for prospects and that the Economic Data Summary and the proposed economic study which will be considerably more detailed, will be a "good step forward in order to have something to work with."

H. B. Bolen, Manager, Farmville Division, VEPCO, added that the economic study will be distributed through a multi - state area. He cautioned that VEPCO compiles information but "we need you people to help us."

Leon L. Bond, of Richmond, manager of industrial development for Virginia Electric and Power Company, explained that the company's Area Development Dept. is divided into community and industrial development, that Kenneth Lane's Community Affairs department, prepared the economic study which Bond, in turn, presents to industrial prospects.

During the luncheon session supervisor Cole pointed out to the visitors that Appomattox schools take 78% of the budget, leaving only 22% to operate the county. "We need to broaden our tax base", he said, in order to meet demands for county services."

Adding to what he said at the earlier meeting, C. E. Hunter, Jr. manager of industrial development, N & W, said, "it all boils down to the word 'prepare'." He said that strong, local leadership has to "sell the community to industry. The final 'sell' ", he said, "is by the local community, itself."

Industries are looking for utilities already available. "They don't want to drill wells or install sewage treatment plants," he said He spoke of Susan Rector, second grader and daughter of Superintend ent and Mrs. A. L. Rector, says that moving to Shiloh National Park, Tennessee will be lots of fun -- especially if her brochure "Four Seasons of Fun in Tennessee" turns out be correct. The Rectors, active in professional and civic endeavors, will be greatly missed by their many friends.

False Alarm Precedes Real Fire Friday

Two fire calls Friday kept Appomattox volunteers on the move in extremely cold weather. Thursday morning a child sent in a false report of a fire in a home on the State Police tower road, (Road 613) with a tanker and truck sent out. About ten minutes after the trucks returned a house fire on North Avenue claimed firemen's attention. Some damage was done to a house when a householder tried to thaw out pipes.

On Christmas Day, while others unwrapped holiday gifts, Appomattox firemen rushed to Evergreen to put out a fire caused by a faulty chimney. Firemen Harold Carter said that the volunteers had to use cold ashes to throw on the roof so they could set up their ladders and climb without slipping.

County On Probation - Seeks 152 Donors

Appomattox County, after several years of meeting and surpassing its Bloodmobile quota of donations is now on probation as the last of three scheduled visits of the Bloodmobile is scheduled for Tuesday, Jan. 27 from 12 noon to 6 p.m.

Appomattox has a quota of 322 pints this year, 197 pints for each of the three scheduled visits, plus one pint. The record so far is 54 pints for the first visit and 112 for the second which leaves the county 152 pints to be received on Jan. 27.

"Appomattox must go 'over the top' for this visit," say the Bloodmobile co-chairmen, Mrs. Benjamin R. Harvey and Mrs. Robert W. Carter. Otherwise the county will be off the blood program and blood transfusions for Appomattox patients, instead of being free, may cost as much as $25 a pint plus costs for administering the blood. At present there is no charge for blood for Appomattox patients except for administration costs.

Beginners Welcome!

Who's afraid of 'Old Man Winter'? Not these skaters on Cole's Pond Sunday afternoon. Some of the skaters are beginners. Vern Massie (3rd from right) was getting ready to slip on his skates in his second day at the sport. Dickie Smith (sliding in at the right) found that knees as well as skates can carry him across the ice, and for everyone there was a warm bonfire and great fun whether they skate or watch.
